"As the 'get there' man of the game, as a strategist without a peer and above all the most successful coach who ever wore the mole-skins, he occupies a commanding position on the gridiron. His book will add to and not detract from his reputation as one of the very few men who know football."

"Prince Bert," as he is called, travelled somewhat extensively in the boom times, and few visiting travellers but have met him at the local hotels, which facts will account for the scattered locations of his debts.

He was commonly reputed to have made, lost and remade more than one fortune within the past ten years. Latterly he seemed to have been on the make, particularly in real estate, so that his heavy bankruptcy will be a surprise to many. It was stated by one intimate with his affairs yesterday that Mr. Peterson had paid off $60,000 of obligations amounting to $110,000 within the past three or four years, and that he was resolved to pay all of his creditors in full after getting into business again upon discharge from bankruptcy.

"Say," queried the sporty-looking man as he entered the intelligence office, "can you procure a clerk for me with a voice exactly like mine?" "Don't know," replied the manager; "what's the object?" "I want him to stay at the office every night and answer the telephone when my wife rings up," explained the party of the sporty part.—Chicago News.

"I hear you are at work on a new novel." "Yes," said the popular novelist. "Who is to bring it out?" "I don't know yet. The highest bonus I have been offered so far is only seventy thousand dollars, and unless the publishers show an inclination to be more liberal I may burn it. I can't afford to cheapen my work in the estimation of the public."—Ex.

Friend—"I understand that the people of Boomtown are anxious to have you take charge of their new church?" Popular preacher—"Y-e-s, there has been some talk about it, but I'm not going." Friend—"Don't you think the Lord is calling you to this new field?" Popular preacher—"Oh, no. If He were He would put it in their hearts to offer me a bigger salary."—New York Weekly.

"Yes," said the beginner at golf, telling his troubles, "the caddy was so sarcastic and impertinent I felt like cracking him over the head." "Well, why didn't you?" asked his friend. "I would have done it, but you see, I didn't know which would be the proper club to use for that purpose."—Philadelphia Press.

"How did you like my talk last night?" asked the beginner in the lecture field. "Well," replied the candid critic, "you didn't take advantage of your many opportunities." "I didn't?" "No, you had a number of opportunities to quit before you did."—Philadelphia Press.

Fountain Soda

There is a great difference between good soda water and indifferent.

It is a difference which affects not only the taste but the health.

Impure soda water is decidedly injurious.

Fountain Soda Water is the best and purest made and its flavor is unexcelled.

Only distilled water is used in its manufacture.

When you have occasion to buy soda water ask for the Fountain brand and see that the name is stamped on the bottle.
